Disability service wins national gong

Blue Mountains Disability Services has been announced as a national prize winner in the 2009 Australian Disability Enterprises Excellence Awards.

The accolade recognises a team of supported employees who has demonstrated an outstanding contribution to the success of an Australian Disability Enterprise.

Microsoft Australia managing director Tracey Fellows and Department of Families, Housing, Community Services and Indigenous Affairs group manager Frances Davies presented the honour at the National Disability Services International Employment Forum.

"This is an extraordinary achievement for our employees and the organisation," Eloura CEO,

Graham Boshier said of the award win "We have always had faith in the ability of the Grounds and Maintenance Team but to be publicly recognised and selected as an award winner for Australia is simply magnificent."

Eloura Business Services manager Tony Burke said the team was "an exceptional group of individuals who has demonstrated great team work, consistency, reliability and a willingness to develop their skills over an extended period of time"

Comprised of supported employees living with a range of intellectual and physical disabilities and mental health issues, the winning team has provided grounds maintenance and landscaping services to domestic, not-for-profit and commercial clients across the Mountains for a number of years.
